

Olbia, November 15th, 2016SPRING - SUMMER 2017 FLIGHTS TO SARDINIA ARE ON SALE ON MERIDIANA.COM

Meridiana is the leading airline on the destination Sardinia; the carrier in fact offers an extensive network from and to the island and operates passenger schedule services up to 21 domestic and international routes.

Starting from today, the whole flight program to Sardinia for the next spring-summer season 2017 is available on meridiana.com at convenient promotional fares, such as from 33€ per person all included.

With regard to the international connections, from April 2017, the Airline confirms the launch of direct flights to Olbia from London Gatwick (2 weekly frequencies, on Tuesdays and Fridays) and Paris (on Fridays and Sundays); moreover, in June a weekly flight will be operated from Moscow (on Sundays) and two from Nice and Marseille (both on Tuesdays and Thursdays).

Concerning the domestic network, Rome, Milan Linate and Bologna are connected with Olbia on an annual basis, while the flights from Venice, Verona, Naples and Milan Malpensa to Costa Smeralda airport will start at the beginning of April. The network to Olbia will be completed in May with flights from Turin and Bergamo, and in June with Bari and Catania routes.

Regarding south Sardinia, the domestic network to Cagliari airport will begin from April 2017: a non-stop daily flight is planned from Milan Malpensa, Naples, Bologna, Turin and 5 weekly frequencies will be operated from Verona.

The Italian island has about 2,000km of Mediterranean coastline. Above all, Sardinia is famous for its white sandy beaches and for the Costa Smeralda life style in summer; however the island, mainly unknown, offers the most enchanting landscapes in springtime: wild and rural countryside, sensational food and wine itineraries, super-friendly local people, natural beauty and archeological sites such as Nuraghi, dating back thousands of years.
